The faithful Catholics of Wheeling and the diocese of West Virginia have long looked with pleasureable anticipation to Monday, September 8, when their be-loved lishop was expected home from his journeyings in Europe and the Orient.

The Bishop's arrival in New York, and his sojourn in Baltimore over Sabbath, were chronicled in yesterday's INTELLIMENCES, together with his impressions exclusively in yesterday's INTELLI-GENCER, it was necessary for the train to come around from Cumberland, by the Pittsburgh division, and it was 11 o'clock before it arrived.

TASTETUL DECORATIONS. TASTETUL DECORATIONS.

The people had begun as early as Saturday to decorate the Cathedral and the other Catholic clurches in honor of the notable event, and yesterday morning a good many private houses and places of business of Catholics displayed flags and appropriate emblens in greater or less profusion. At the Cathedral the porcinin front of the entrance was most beautifully decorated, the profusion of the adornments not being too great to allow fully decorated, the profusion of the adornments not being too great to allow the display of good taste. The word design. On the wall of the convent facing the Cathedral the words "Welcome Home," in ornamental letters, were surrounded by tasteful decorations, while the Eoff street front of the convent was marked with the national flag and the Papal colors.

Papal colors.
At St. Alphonsus Church, also, the decorations were profuse and in great good taste, the school house being gay

The Catholic societies turned out in goodly numbers to bonor the head of their church in the diocese. Not only Wheeling's societies, but one or two from out of town, were in the ranks which matched to the Baltimore & Ohio station to receive the Bishop and escort him over the route laid down and to the Cathedral, Rich and handsome banners, brilliant plumes and gay badges or regalia gave to the line a picturague and stratify appearance. The thermometer at Schnepf's drug atore, Opera Ilouse corner, yesterday, registered as follows: Masilisators, D. C., Sept. 8.—For Western Pennsylvania rain, cooler, followed by rising temperature in extreme western portions; warmer Wednesday; northerly winds, becoming variable.

For Ohio and West Virginia rain, cooler, followed by rising temperature in Ohio; warmer Wednesday; northerly winds, becomine variable: fair Wednesday; northerly winds, becomine variable; fair Wednesday.

The Bishop had left Pittsburgh on the lirst section of the train, but learning after leaving Washington that Rev. Mgr. Sullivan and a party of trends from Wheeling who desired to join him had failed to get on that section at Washington, he left the train at Claysville and waited for the second one, joining his friends on it. Pune Rye Whisky at Hearne's, No. 20 On the train the Bishop was in an excellent good humor. A fellow passen-ger looked in his new silk hat and observed, "Ab, you are partial in your purchases; I observe that you wear a Cork hat."

"That is no wonder," said the Bishop;

"That is no wonder," eard the Bishop;
"my father wore two Cork legs."
Carriages were in waiting at the etation, and the Bishop, Rev. Mons. Sullivan, Rev. Father Parke and Rev. Fsther Maurice, O. C. M., were excerted to one and the other clergy took seats in the others, and the procession took up the line of march. THE PROCESSION.

The line was headed by Chief Marshal T. S. Kiley and staif, Mesers, John Cor-coran, J. A. Canningbam, Peter Bonen-berger, Bernard Bach, William Friese and Dr. J. A. Campbell. "The Marshal and assistants were mounted. Followme the societies and carriages:

MONSIGNOR SULLIVAN'S ADDRESS,

MONSTONGR SULLIVAN'S ADDRESS.

Rev. Mgr. Sullivan addressed the Bishop as follows:

Rr. Rev. AND BELOVED BISHOP:—On this glad occasion a brief address is part of the programme. It is well to any brief, for no lengthy or elaborate discourse could adequately express the feelings of joy of all your lordship's children, elergy, religious communities and laity. Our feelings our more eloquently told by the outpouring of all the people of your Episcopal See as well as of some representatives of other parts of your diocese. The feelings our more dequently told by the outpouring of the people of your Episcopal See as well as of some representatives of other parts of your diocese. The feelings of those who could not be present are the same as our own. In the name, then, of your devoted clergy here present, and others unavoidably absent, in the name of the cliquese, in the name of the loyal laity of this city and of the whole of your lordship's jurisdiction; in the name of the reverend fathers of the trans-Ohio diocese, I bid you the most heartleft and whole-souled welcome—that welcome which you have this day seen beaming on the countenances of young and old, which you have heard in the joyous strains of music and in the eloquent peal of your churches' consecrated belis.

Another feeling goes hand in hand with our welcome—that of thankseiv.

Bishop Kain responded briefly but carnestly and eloquently. He said he personally would have preferred not to have a public reception, but when he learned by letter before he left Europe his friends here to tender him a public reception, he realized that it was an honor, not to him as a man, but to the position which he held in the church. He felt as he never felt before that he coccupied a public position. He thanked become he a public position. He thanked before this great outpouring. He felt that it was to hear from the Holy Father at Rome, the personal representative of Jesus Christ on Earth, that they had come here. He had told the Pope that after a tour covering a greater part of the civilized world, he was proud to say that nowhere had he found truer or nore faithful children of
